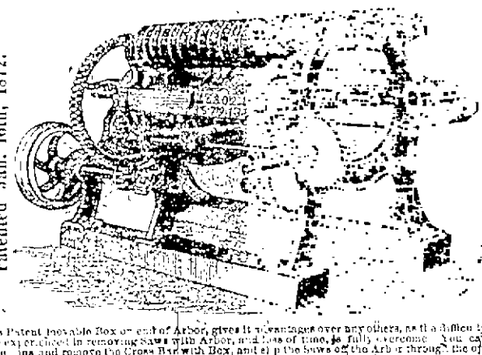
RICHARDSON'S PARALLEL GANG EDGER,



Patented Jan. 16th, 1872. Patented April 14th, 1874.

This Patent movable Box or guide Arbor, gives it advantages over any others, as it allows by hereto fore expensive time in removing Saws with Arbor, and loss of time, is fully overcome. You can take out the Saw and remove the Cross Bar with Box, and replace Saws on the Arbor through the opening. Machine is constructed entirely of Iron and Steel. The Gauge Pin levers are another great improvement, as they regulate the feed to suit the kind of work required to be done. These Edgers are used extensively for Sawing Deals and Scantling. We would caution purchasers against buying those machines which are an infringement on these. All sizes of Edgers, with two or more Saws, made to order. Also on hand and for sale at low prices and liberal terms

MARK THESE FACTS!

The Testimony of the Whole World.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

"I take no other pills, Holloway's Pills have made a healthy one."

"Your Pills are marvelous."

"I don't for another box, as I keep them in the house."

"My wife says they cured her of a headache that was worse than death."

"I gave one of your Pills to a man taken for cholera morbus. The dear little thing got well in a day."

"My mother died morning, thanks to your cure."

"Over that at Holloway's, the mental fog and noise in the head. I tried every thing, but your medicine behind the door, or I'd die, I am sure."

"Send me two more, I was a fool not to send for a pot long ago."

"Enclosed is a dollar, your price is 25 cents, but the medicine is made worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your Pills."

"Send a box of three boxes of your Pills by return mail, for Chills and Fever."

"I have over 300 such testimonials, but they can't want of space compels me to be brief."

For Cutaneous Disorders.

And all eruptions of the skin, no ointment is most invaluable. It does not stop at the surface, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cure the following diseases

Disorder of the Kidneys.

In all cases affecting these organs, whether they be caused by too much or too little water, or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel, or with dropsy and pain attendant on the disease over the regions of the kidneys, these Pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the Ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief, when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order.

No medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these Pills, they remove all indigestion occasioned either by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and regulate it to a healthy action, they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasms—in fact they never fail to purge all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Asthma, Biliousness, Bowel Complaints, Bowels out of Order, Bowels Constipated, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention of Urine, Sore Throat, Stone and Gravel, The Blood, Tic Douloureux, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms—for all kinds, Weakness from any cause, etc.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. Hayman, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills, and Ointment. A liberal reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting this medicine, or vending the same, knowing it to be spurious.

. Sold at the manufactory of PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY & CO., New York, and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicine throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

SPRING IS COMING

From O. N. E. Farmer.

Although it is not yet quite time to start the plough and the cultivator, nor to plant or sow the seeds for the crops of the year, yet it is high time to be making all the necessary preparation for duties and labors which will very soon be upon us. Success in any undertaking depends very much on getting a good start. The successful farmer will ever be on the lookout for the future. He cannot, like the day laborer in shop or the factory, simply perform the duties of the hour or the day, and leave the future wholly to chance. His work requires foresight and careful planning. The labors of spring are a part of a job that will last through the year, and the results of our year's labor will depend as much upon how we plant or sow, as upon our skill in harvesting our crops. There is much that can be done within the next few weeks which will help very much in making the work run smoothly by and by.

Here, in New England, the growing season is short at best, and we can't afford to waste or miss a day out. We get occasionally warm days in March or April, which are little more than indications of the summer, but they are sure indicators for all that, and we should endeavor to be as thoroughly prepared for making the most of the growing season, when it comes, as is possible.

SUITABLE TOOLS AND SLEDS.

It is too early to plough or plant, but it is not too early to decide where the several crops shall grow, nor to secure the tools and seeds which will be needed for producing them.

The agricultural warehouses are now well stocked with implements and tools for the use of the farmer the coming season, and now is the time to look them over, select those which will be required, and have them shipped before they are needed. It is exceedingly annoying to be obliged to wait several days for a plough, harrow, or other implement, after the season arrives for using it. Buy in season everything which will be needed that there may be no delay when the time comes for using. Grass seed, with the exception of clover, is very low, at present. It may be lower or it may be higher, when the spring fairly opens, but, at present prices, it would seem that there could be but little risk in buying enough for the spring seeding. And while about it, would it not usually pay to buy grass seed by the sack, instead of by the peck or bushel? Grass seed will keep for six months, or a year, as well when the farmer has it in the merchant's hands, and a considerable saving can be made by purchasing unbroken packages. Few of us sow our grass seed as thick as we should be for our interest and partly because we buy it too much by the peck, or in small retail quantities.

DRY HAY UNDER COVER.

The snow has been usually deep the last winter, rendering it very difficult to get to the woods for wood. Now that it is possible to do so, no time should be lost in getting a full stock of fuel for the coming year. If you choose to burn part green wood, there will be ample time for cutting it next Winter when wanted, but if you would have plenty of dry, well seasoned wood on hand, you must cut it now, and when partially seasoned by these piercing March winds, pack it under cover where it can come to the air without being exposed to wet.

We have an impression from partial experiment and observation, that wood cut in early autumn will make much better medium fire in spring after the sap starts, but it had better be cut now than to wait until from week to week during the summer.

HIRED HELP.

Thousands of laborers have been without work during the winter, because—well, that opens a great question, and one we will not stop to discuss at this time. Some men are always out of work and not a few like to be. The best workers can usually find something to do. Probably wages will be lower this year than for several years past, but certainly good men, those who can do all kinds of farm work neatly and with dispatch will all find places. If one would secure good help of this class, he should hire early. Good help is generally the cheapest, for a good help always the highest priced. Some men will have their price or not work at all. Such men are in demand as spare hands when farmers get in a hurry, but men of this class seldom succeed well in the long run. They have too much lost time, when they are consuming without earning. As a rule we believe it is better for both the employer and the employed to engage by the year, or for a long term. Day help can seldom be depended upon. Then, if there is about so much work to be done in a year, on a farm, or so much money to be earned by the laborer to maintain himself, it is as well for both parties to spread it rather evenly through the seasons, as to try to do it all in a short time. If one hires a laborer for a single day's work, at an exhilarant price, he expects an extra day's work performed, whether he gets it or not, but if a man is working by the season, or by the year, at fair rates, one does not feel like crowding and hurrying all the time.

A good hired man will cheerfully push things a little when the weather is favorable and the work urgent, and a kind and reasonable employer will be a little easy during rainy days.

EARLY CHICKENS.

It is a little early yet to have chickens hatched out, unless one has a good dry, warm shed for them, but it is quite time to select the breeding stock, to weed out and kill off the inferior birds, and save choice eggs for setting. Early chickens are the most profitable, if one can handle them judiciously.

The large Asiatics are decidedly more profitable, if they can be hatched out early in the spring, and be kept growing continuously through the spring and summer months. They require about six months to mature, and, unless they are hatched out early, they will seldom commence laying before the following spring, whereas, if they can be brought to maturity in October, or earlier, they will, if provided with warm quarters and well fed, lay all winter. Such pullets also make better breeders for the following spring, as their eggs will be of good size, and the fowls will be in condition to mate early. Once get behind in hatching out Brahmas of the larger strains, and it is hard to catch up again. Late chickens commence to lay late, they will not sit till late in the spring or summer, and, consequently, they will produce only late chickens for the next year's stock. The early maturing breeds, like the Leghorns, may be hatched later in the season, as they require only about four months to come to maturity.

But, successful poultry farming is a trade of itself, and now we are only giving hints for the season. In future numbers, we may treat this subject more fully.

THE RAILWAY KING.

[From Harper's Weekly.]

Colonel Thomas A. Scott, president of the Pennsylvania Railway Company, and at the present moment the most prominent personage in the railway affairs of the country, early in life the business of railroading, and knows full experience how to sell tickets, to package freight, to choose a site, to inspect a mill to erect a house, and to measure with the eye the contents of a warehouse, a mass of freight, or a train of cars. His ancestry believed in an even earlier than Sabbath. He knew all about nothing on the Susquehanna and its tributaries, all the secrets of the lumber business, booms, canals, coal mining, and the ratio of increase of product. After accidents or storms he was always out the quick set with his gangs of rafts makers and bridge-builders, restoring the integrity of the road. His equable temperament accommodated itself to the rough enthusiasm of a crowd of laborers or the careful calculation of the engineers. He made out a Scotch-Irish stock which had passed in pioneer days beyond the settled limits of the common wealth, and cut down the forests commenced the roads, and started the towns. His acquaintance was universal, and everywhere he was a thorough-paid. He knew every man of capital or rising consequence in the service of the company, and met one after another of those able men who was to come forward in the growth of railroads. His temper was decided, but not imperfect. He was familiar with legislature as with practical work, and saw far ahead into the schemes of unscrupulous or avaricious politicians, who were constantly laboring to make the railroad an adjunct of their own fortunes. Although he has been invited into many temptations, and has been president at one time of probably more railroads than any human being he never lost sight of his prime relation to the Pennsylvania Railroad. A genial nature and capacity and love of work have kept him young, and long in friends.

WHAT REGISTERED LETTERS ARE.

An exchange says: The question is very often asked, What is the difference between a registered letter and any other? The difference is that a registered letter does not go in the mail proper. It passes from hand to hand outside of the mail pouches, every person through whose hands it passes being required to sign a receipt for it on receiving it, and receive a receipt for it on passing it over to the next transit. The person holding the last receipt is thus always able to show who is accountable for its loss. The responsibility rests upon the man who has signed a receipt for the registered package, and who is not able to put into the package or a receipt from somebody else for it. The safest way to send money is by money order. Where it does not go to a money order office it should always be sent in a registered package. Money ought not to be sent in an ordinary letter under any circumstances. There is no possible way of tracking such a letter.

STATE NEWS.

Aroostook.

Ten Swedes from New Sweden were admitted at Houlton, last week. There are now about six hundred Swedes in the colony, which is reported to be in very prosperous condition.

The Pioneer says that in the suit by Llewellyn Powers, esq., of Houlton, against Theodore Clay of the Aroostook Times for defamation of character, the case was tried before the S. J. Court, at Houlton, March, 1874, and the jury rendered a verdict of $5,000. Clay appealed to the law court which confirmed the verdict. After repeated petitions for review, each of which was dismissed, the end has come by a writ upon a bond given by defendant and signed by several responsible persons to pay the amount of original judgment with twelve per cent. interest till paid. The amount of this bond, together with interest and costs up to date, is $8,700 00. The end has been reached by an agreement, signed by defendant's counsel and placed on file, that default shall be entered on the first day of next September term of court, unless the judgment is sooner satisfied.

The Reform Club started in Bowdoin a few weeks since, is progressing finely. Fifty or more have signed the pledge. Let the text everywhere be "Beware of the first glass."

State at Large.

The annual meeting of the K. & L. R. R. Co. occurred in Rockland, Wednesday. The net earnings of the road during the last year have been 43 per cent. of the interest. The reasons for the decrease in the earnings of the road may be found in the general depression of business. It is believed that the lowest point has been reached, and that an increase of earnings to a moderate amount may be anticipated during the ensuing year. But some repairs of the road, had must necessarily be made, and it is not probably safe to rely upon any increase of the net earnings of the road.

HOT-BEDS.

The first work that seems like real farming, that can be done in spring, making and tending hot-beds. There is a charm about a plantation of lettuce, cabbage, tomato, or other tender plants growing vigorously under glass, while outside the ground is frozen, or covered with snow.

A hot-bed is a very simple thing in theory, but good judgement, constant care, and some degree of practice, are needed for the successful management of the untimely production of these winter gardens. For ordinary farmers, the first week in April is early enough for starting such. Plants may be forced at this time full six weeks ahead of their natural season, with the risk of loss, and the expense of protection will be much less than if started a month earlier, as is the custom with market gardeners. Any smart farmer boy may learn to manage a hot bed, but we cannot recommend every one to try it. There is so much care needed, and the care is so constant, that it would be better for one or two individuals in each town or village to make the care of hot-beds something of a specialty, and grow plants for the neighborhood as it is just as confining to raise a single dozen plants as to produce a thousand. The work is especially adapted to persons who may not be in full health or strength, although, like everything else, one can put hard work into it if he chooses.

TEAMS

The oxen and horses which are expected to do the spring work should be worked into it, and hardened up gradually, for if they have been laying idle all winter, hard work will tell upon them as upon their drivers under like circumstances. Do not let them injure themselves by too hard work at the outset. We have seen disaster ruined for life by a single day's work, hauling logs in the spring, after a long vacation.

The farm stock will be increasing now, and the new comers must be well cared for and protected from the cold March winds, which are more severe to bear than the cold, or still weather of a little later. Everything now about the farm is a promise of future harvests, and an increase of the good things of this world. The more closely we attend to the duties of the present hour, the better the prospect for future rewards.

AN IMPUDENT FRAUD.

One of the most impudent frauds perpetrated by any of the newspapers which are trying to dodge their own records, we find in the N. Y. Evening Post of Thursday. In attempting to prove that the policy of "conciliation" by surrender is Republican doctrine that paper said:

Senators and other persons who think that President Hayes' policy is enabling him to quarrel with the party which elected him will do well to read again the Cincinnati platform. In it they will find the following declarations:

It then gave what purported to be a complete paragraph of the Cincinnati Platform and followed it with this Peekskillian comment:

President Hayes believes that a party platform is a solemn pledge which it is the duty of the party which comes into power to carry out. Certain other persons believed that it is only a scare to catch votes and to be forgotten as soon as election is over.

Now how do our readers suppose that this high-toned and conscientious journal quoted the Republican Platform? We will show them. It took the first five lines and the last five lines of an explicit and important paragraph of the Platform, joined them together by leaving out the whole of the substantial and specific declarations of the paragraph, and published its garbling as a complete quotation, without an asterisk or any other indication that anything was omitted from the text. The impudence of this fraud will be seen by reading below the actual text of the paragraph of the Platform, the Post having omitted all that portion which we have indicated between the bracket marks, and having joined the head and tail of the thing together after cutting out the body:

3. The permanent pacification of the Southern section of the Union, and the complete protection of all its citizens in the free enjoyment of all their rights, is a duty to which the Republican party stands sacredly pledged. [The power to provide for the enforcement of the principles embodied in the recent constitutional amendments, is vested by those amendments in the Congress of the United States, and we declare it to be the solemn obligation of the legislative and executive departments of the Government to put into immediate and vigorous exercise all their constitutional powers for removing any just causes of discontent on the part of any class, and for securing to every American citizen complete liberty and exact equality in the exercise of all civil, political and public rights.] "To this end we imperatively demand a Congress and a Chief Executive whose courage and fidelity to these duties shall not either shrink nor falter; these results are placed beyond dispute or recall.

A person who should thus mutilate and distort a business document would and his offence plainly characterized in the statute laws, and what shall we say for a political course which can only sustain itself by such dishonest garbling of the Republican declaration of principle?

STANLEY MATTHEWS' PLAN

(From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.)

Mr. Stanley Matthews, of Ohio, is a decided novelty in the political field. He speaks with the confidence of an oracle, and attempts to convey the impression that he is the echo of the President. If he is to be made United States Senator it were well that it were done quickly. He is in imminent danger of becoming a chronic resentment to his friends. Already Mr. Hayes has been forced to say, in substance, "I did not authorize Mr. Matthews to enter upon negotiation with Gov. Chamberlain. When he advised that official to 'surrender his rights for the good of the country' he spoke for himself, and not for me." Mr. Matthews, however, had not the grace to back up the disavowal of the President. On the contrary, he continues to speak oracularly. His latest utterances are rather startling. He says the fact that Packard's government is the legitimate government under the forms of law makes no difference, if the administration chooses to recognize the Nicholls government, which originated in mob force, and which is still sustained by mob force, the main thing requisite being strength sufficient to maintain a government. But this is not all. He intimates that if a party of revolutionists in Ohio should arise and seize violent possession of the government of that State the President of the United States would have a right to recognize the usurpation and validate it. Here are State rights with a vengeance. It is pity that John C. Calhoun is not alive to applaud his disciple from Ohio. The phrases "mob violence," "force," "strength sufficient to maintain a government" sound bad in connection with the solemn responsibilities of the Federal Government in regard to the States. Surely, if the Federal authority has anything to do with the State governments at all, its power should be exerted in aid of the maintenance of the legitimate government, organized under the forms of law, and not in aid of the government springing from mob violence. Under the operation of Mr. Matthews' theory we might have revolutions every month in every State in the Union—revolutions brought about, not through the only method known to the Constitution of the Nation and to the Constitutions of the States, the ballot-box, but by force and mob violence. Says this new expounder of the Constitution: "The National Government may recognize the one which may be called the mob party, if said mob party is actually strong enough to maintain itself and establish a State government." When this theory shall be adopted we shall doubtless witness some strange scenes. There will be a large crop of revolutions on the eve of each Presidential election. There will be a lively scramble for the control of the ballot-boxes in which the votes for electors are to be deposited, and the result will be a universal reign of mob violence. Of course the reigning President will hold the winning hand, since he may recognize the Government he "likes best," without regard to the forms of law, or no law, under which it was organized. The legitimacy of the State government will depend solely upon its ability to maintain itself by force. In other words, justice and legality will be held to be on the side of the strongest battalions. We regard it as desirable that Mr. Matthews should either go into the United States Senate or disappear entirely from public view. It is better that he should speak for Ohio than that he should pretend to speak for the President.

The Lowell (Mass.) Courier says: "We don't know what sort of an arrangement the Boston Journal has lately made for getting Washington despatches, but we are about ready to conclude that if what its correspondents have recently been saying about 'dual governments sustained by federal bayonets' is just and true, Mr. Tilden ought to have named the new Cabinet."

REPUBLICAN DOCTRINE.

THE DUTY OF PROTECTING CITIZENS IN THE SOUTH.

[Speech of Col. R. G. Ingersoll at Chicago, Sept. 27th, 1876.]

OUR DUTY TO THE COLORED RACE.

I say here to-night that I think a hundred times more of the good, honest, black, industrious man of the South, than I do of all the white men together that don't love this government. [Cheers.] And I think more of a black man in the South than I do of any white man in the North that sympathizes with the white wretch that wishes to trample upon the rights of the black man. [Applause.] I believe that the government has not only the power, but that it is the right of this government to march all the soldiers necessary into any sovereign State of this Union to defend the rights of every American citizen in that State. [Cheers.] * * * *

THE DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE OF WHITE MINORITY RULE.

But the Democratic doctrine is that this government can protect its citizens only when they are away from home. This may account for so many Democrats going to Canada during the war. [Laughter.] I believe that the government must not only protect you abroad, but must protect you at home; and that is the great question before the American people to-day. I had thought that human impudence had reached its limit age ago and ages ago. I had supposed that some time in the history of the world impudence had reached its length, and so I believed until I read the congratulatory address of Abraham S. Hewitt, Chairman of the Central Committee of New York, wherein he congratulates the negroes of the South on what he calls the Democratic victory in Indiana." If human impudence can go beyond this, all I have to say is it never has. [Laughter.] What does he say to the colored people? He says to them, in substance, "the reason the white people trample upon you is because the white people are weak. Give the white people more strength, put the white people in authority, and, although they murder you now, when they are weak, when they are strong they will let you alone. Applause.] The only trouble with our Southern white brethren is that they are in the minority. They kill you now, and the only way to save your life is to put the enemy in a majority." That is the doctrine of Abram S. Hewitt and he congratulates the colored people of the South upon "the Democratic victory in the State of Indiana." There is going to be a great crop of hawks next year; let us congratulate the doves. [Laughter.] The burglars have whipped the police; let us congratulate the bank. That is it. The wolves have killed all most of the shepherds, let us congratulate the sheep. [Laughter.] This is the same Abram S. Hewitt who has endeavored to extract the rotten teeth of Democratic slander into the live and quivering flesh of the reputation of that splendid man, James G. Blaine. [Cheers.] This same Hewitt that congratulates the negroes of the South upon the prospect of their assassins getting into political power—the next thing we hear from him is a slander against the name and reputation of a man about whom he is not fit to speak even in terms of praise. [Cheers.]

NO COMPROMISE WITH THE ENEMIES OF LIBERTY.

The black people have suffered enough. [Applause.] For 200 years they were sold, and bought and sold, and branded like cattle. For 200 years every human tie was rent and torn asunder by the brutal cloven hoofs of avarice and night. And Democrats, I am in favor of this government protecting them in every right they have got in every Southern State, if it takes another war to do it. [Cheers.] We never can compromise with the South at the expense of our friends. Never! Never! [Applause.]

THE LOUISIANA CASE.

REPORT OF THE JOHN SHERMAN COMMITTEE.

The following are the closing paragraphs of the report of the committee of which Senator Sherman, now secretary of the Treasury, was chairman, to President Grant last December.—

BARBAROUS PRACTICES.

Organized clubs of masked armed men formed, and recommended by the Central Democratic Committee, ride through the country at night marking their course by the whipping, shooting, wounding, maiming, mutilating and murder of women, children and defenceless men, whose houses were forcibly entered while they slept, and as their inmates fled through fear the pistol, the rifle, the knife and the rope were employed to do their horrid work.

Crime like these testified to by scores of witnesses, were the means employed in Louisiana to elect a President of the United States, and when they shall succeed the glories of the Republic will have departed and shame and horror will supplant in the hearts of our people that love and veneration with which they have hitherto regarded the institutions of their country.

THE PROOF OF VIOLENCE, ARMED DISTURBANCE AND INTIMIDATION.

In many other parishes is of the same general character, although more general and precise as to the five parishes particularly referred to. In others these causes prevailed at particular polling places at many of which a Republican vote was, to a considerable extent, prevented. We hope to be able to furnish full copies of all the testimony taken by the Board, that the people of the conclusions may be appreciated.

THE REASONING BOARD.

It is a tribunal from which there can be no appeal, and in view of the possible consequences of its adjudication, we have closely observed its proceedings, and have carefully weighed the force of large mass of the testimony upon which that adjudication has been reached. Members of the Board, acting under oath, we found by the law. If convinced by the testimony that riot, tumults, acts of violence or armed disturbance did materially interfere with the purity and freedom of election, at any polling or voting place, or did materially change the result of the election thereat, to reject the votes thus cast and exclude them from their final return.

Of the effect of such testimony the Board was the sole and final judge, and if in reaching a conclusion it exercised good faith and was guided by an honest desire to do justice, its determination should be respected, even if upon like proof a different conclusion might have been reached by other tribunals or persons. To guard the purity of the ballot, to protect the citizen in the free and peaceful exercise of his right to vote, to secure him against violence, and especially murder, when he attempts to perform this duty, should be the desire of all men and the aim of every representative government.

If political success shall be attained by such violent and terrible means as were resorted to in many parishes in Louisiana, complaint should not be made if the votes thus obtained are denounced by judicial tribunals and all honest men as illegal and void.

An exchange says:—When Hayes, Tribune and Grant thought Tilden elected, how different their language:

"I don't care for myself," said Hayes at the 9th of November serenade, "for the party—yes, and the country too—can stand it, but I do care for the poor colored men of the South. If any part of the country suffers or remains at a stand still, it will be the South under the new regime. Northern men can't live there; and will leave; and immigration into the States will cease—but as I said before, I do pity the poor black man of the South." The result will be that the Southern people will practically treat the constitutional amendments as nullities, and then the colored man's fate will be worse than when he was in slavery with a humane master to look after his interests. That is the only reason I regret that the news is as it is.

Why don't the Boston Journal and Boston Advertiser, print Garrison's letter to Blaine? Are they "purblind?"—Concord Monitor.

NEW MAGAZINES.

The ATLANTIC for April has for its opening paper the "Diary of a British Officer," stationed in Boston during the siege of the city in 1776, which gives an interesting glimpse of the state of things at that time, the altercations between the inhabitants and soldiery, the excitement caused by Warren's oration of the 5th of March in the Old South Church, etc., and concludes with a very clear and graphic description of the march to Lexington and Concord, the fights there, and the deadly fire which assailed the retreating troops all the way to Charlestown. John Fiske contributes an able historical paper on "The Races of the Danube," which makes it easy to understand why the Eastern question is a complicated one, and difficult of solution. Mr. Longfellow's Ballad of the French Fleet, October, 1746, is very quaint, and has a touch of humor not often found in his verses. Mrs. Howells gives the two concluding chapters of his bright comedy romance, Out of the Question, ending it in what will be deemed an eminently satisfactory manner. The South Carolinian, who gave such a graphic description of the political condition of his State in the February number, contributes another chapter on South Carolina Morals. Mr. James' story of "The American" approaches its conclusion, and loses none of its interest. E. H. Stoddard contributes a long narrative poem entitled Wraxhaw, and there are other poems by Alice Williams Brotherton, R. H., and Mrs. Platt. Edwin P. Whipple criticises Dickens's American Notes, and Knight's Mechanical Dictionary is made the subject of a careful review among the body articles of the number. The Contributors' Club contains as usual, bright and suggestive paragraphs on various topics, and the musical department of the magazine offers a very effective song—The Creole Lover's Song—written by E. C. Stedman, and set to music by Dudley Buck. It is arranged for baritone or contralto voice, and occupies six pages of the number. The Nor Name Series is reviewed under Recent Literature, and the article Chenuses Turner's painting of the Slave Ship, which has recently been placed in the Boston Art Museum.

HIGHLY UNIMPORTANT

Gossip about the Morrill Appointment —A new version of "Who Killed Cock Robin"—Cheap stuff for telegraph

NEW YORK, March 16 The following is special to the Evening Post —

WASHINGTON, March 15,

There is trouble among the Maine politicians growing out of the published statement that ex-Secretary Morrill is indicted for his appointment as Collector of Customs at Portland to Senator Blaine and Representative Hale and Reed, who according to Senator Blaine, called upon the President Monday and requested Mr Morrill's appointment, and were assured that it would be made This is Mr Blaine's own statement made to your correspondent and was accepted as true It now appears that in the middle of last week Representative Frye, after a consultation with Mr Morrill's friends called upon the President and told him the Ex Secretary would accept the Portland Collectorship The President said it would afford him pleasure to make the appointment and that he regretted Mr Morrill would not accept a first class Foreign Mission The rest of the story is told in the following letter which was received here to-day from Mr Frye —

RIVERS HOUSE

BOSTON March 14, 1877

DEAR SIR —The wars of the world are waged with small means and the battles are fought in detail, and I take this instance I very earnestly recommended Mr Morrill a week since for the office of Collector and then called on Senator Blaine and he informed me that he would do what he could to give Mr Morrill some office that Mr Morrill was to have this I then saw Mr Hale and he was sorry I had done anything, or decided because the delegation wished Marble On Sunday last I informed Senator Hamlin of what I had done and he told me Marble had the whole delegation except me and Mr Reed, that Reed would be on the next ward and would support Marble Judge of my surprise I took up a newspaper since and reading Mr Morrill was appointed on the recommendation of Sen Blaine Frye Hale and Mr Reed I recollected that I had nothing to do with it

Now is this true? Do they recommend him? If so I shall do what I can to have the appointment vacated, for I prize the friendship of no man who will do such a thing Yours truly

THE FIEND TWINS DIARY.

January.—Am born. Didn't want to be. Object immediately as loud as I can. Younger brother born seven minutes later. Looks like a fool, but may improve as he mellows with age.

February.—Catch a cold. Give it to younger brother. He's sickliler than I am. Very nearly settles him.

March.—Catch a rash. Pass it on to the other cave. Pretty well winds up his clock.

April.—They've christened us. I'm Augustus and he's Alexander. Don't he look an ass of a Alexandrer? I'll kick him when he sleeps.

May.—Get the nettle rash. Hooray! Bo's he. Only worse.

June.—They don't think they'll be able to rear him. He's to have cod-liver oil. Can't help laughing.

July.—He's been squalling awful. Nurse says it's his nasty temper. I know it's a pin, but I'm not going to say so.

August.—We've got a new nurse who talks to tall soldier, and leaves pneumatic tor basking in the sun. Alexandrer's got a blister on his nose. They don't know what it is, and they're going to give him a powder.

September.—I've given him the scarlatina. He seems resigned. I've nicked his feeding bottle.

October.—I've got a new game now—poking Noah's wife into his ear when the nurse ain't looking.

November.—We're beginning to walk. He's weaker on his pins than I am, so I can show him over easy.

December.—I'm beginning to cut my first tooth. As soon as it's through I've made up my mind to bite Alexander.

Bacon once asserted «knowledge is power;» but farmers are rather inclined to think that Bacon did not mean their class, when he made this assertion. At any rate farmers hardly ever take any pains to improve themselves in the knowledge of their duties, even when the means are so near at hand.

What is it, that by the help of God, enables some individuals to carry on commerce more prosperously, to engage in manufacturing more successfully, to excel in mechanism, or even to produce more abundant harvests, better cattle, finer horses, and have more abundance of this world's goods, but the fleglisiom and judicious application of that knowledge in which others are deficient? That the power and prosperity of a country depends on the diffusion of useful knowledge can hardly be questioned, and that the knowledge of agriculture and similar things will live more to do with that power and prosperity, than any other one branch is equally unquestionable. To preserve the fertility of the soil, to free it from pestiferous moisture, to cultivate it to the greatest advantage, to raise its productions at least expense, to procure the best instruments of husbandry, to select the stock likely to be the most profitable, to feed them in the most judicious manner, to bring them to the most advantageous market, at most seasonable time, to secure harvests in the best manner, to make manures to preserve and husband them, to restore worn out soils; these, all these, and even more, require a greater extent and variety of knowledge than might at first view be judged.

A Scotch Story.—A certain minister having become much addicted to drink, his presbytery had to interfere, and get the minister to sign the pledge. The result was that the sudden reaction was too much for him, and he became so ill that the doctor had to be sent for. The doctor said he must begin to take his toddy again. This the minister said he could not do, as he had taken the pledge. The doctor replied that he might get a bottle at two quietly, and nobody but their two selves and the housekeeper would know it. «Man,» said the minister, «my housekeeper is worse than all the presbytery put together, so that would not do.» However, it was arranged that the doctor should bring in the whisky and sugar, and that the minister was to make up the dose toddy in the bed room with the hot water he got for shaving purposes in the morning. The result was the minister got specially well, and one day on going out, the doctor said to the minister's housekeeper, «Well, Margaret, your minister is quite himself again.» «There's no doubt of that, sir,» she replied, «he's quite well in the body, but there is something gone far wrong with his upper story.» «What's wrong?» asked Margaret. «Sir,» said the elderly lady, «he's got the cheekie. Weel, sir, I dinna ken, but he ha's for shavin' water ony 'or seven times a day.»

WHAT A PLANT DID.—A little plant was given to a sick girl. In trying to take care of it, the family made changes in their way of living. First, they cleared the window, that more light might come to the invalid; then, when not so cold, they would open the window, that fresh air might help the plant to grow. Next, the clean window made the rest of the room look so untidy that they used to wash the floor and walls and arrange the furniture more neatly. This led the father of the family to mend a broken chair or two, which kept him at home several evenings. After the work was done he saved money, instead of spending his leisure at a tavern, and the money thus saved, went to pay comfortable, the whole family lived at home which was a great gain. Thus the little plant brought treasure as well as a physical blessing.

A COMFORTING WISH.—THAN THIS IS MORE. The history of jurisprudence probably does not afford a more amusing story than that of an incident which occurred at Longsnore in an English court, when a man who had been convicted at the previous session of an attempt to steal, was brought up and sentenced to five years' penal servitude. «What have you to say, prisoner?» he exclaimed. «I thought only to be two years.» He went back to his cell, but his comment on the sentence was correct, and in a few minutes he was recalled to the dock, when an augmented sentence was passed upon him. «I told you so!» he remarked triumphantly, and he went back to his cell, elated at having saved three years.

There's a man on West Hill who lives a solitary life on his heath and he wife makes him sit in the blue glass eyes five hours a day. She says «Pleasanton fair the worst lar in the universe, she is going to have something to catch hold of the next time that man of hers comes home at three o'clock in the morning from a Presidential torchlight procession.—Hartford.

A Clergyman has just united in marriage a couple whose names were respectively Benjamin and Ann. «How did they appear during the ceremony?» asked a friend. «They appeared both Apalemated and Benedicted,» was the reply.

Most men call fretting a minor fault; folible, and not a vice. There is no vice except drunkenness which can so utterly destroyed the peace, the happiness of a home.

A Result of Obstructed Digestion.

Among the fearful consequences of obstructed digestion, is the impoverishment of the blood, and since a deteriorated condition of the blood not only produces dangerous organic weaknesses, but, according to the best medical authorities, sometimes causes asphyxia, it is apparent that to prove the quality of the blood by promoting digestion and assimilation, is a paramount duty. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is precisely the remedy for this purpose, since it stimulates the gastric juices, regulates these bilious and occasionally irregularities which interfere with the digestive processes, promotes assimilation of the food by the blood, and purifies as well as enriches it. The signs of improvement in health in consequence of using the bitters are specially apparent in an accession of vigor, a gain in bodily substance, and a regular and active performance of every physical function. eod&wlw mch14

To F. A. WILSON, Esquire, a Justice of the Peace, within and for the County of Penobscot, and resident in Bangor

The undersigned three members of the Bangor Insurance Company, a corporation established by law, and located at Bangor, in the County of Penobscot and State of Maine, respectively represent that the interest of said corporation requires that a special meeting of its stockholders be held at the time and place hereinafter called, that such a meeting can lawfully, duly be provided for by a written notice signed by a majority of said Company, directing the Secretary of said Company, to call the stockholders of said Company, in Bangor, on Thursday, the 8th day of March, A. D. 1877, at 9 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purposes named in Section 5, Chapter 69, Revised Statutes of the United States relating to Banks, and otherwise called for by law. We therefore request you to issue your warrant directed to one of our number authorized by law to call a meeting of the stockholders of said Company, in Bangor, on Thursday, the 8th day of March, A. D. 1877, at 9 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purposes aforesaid, and we will ever pray.

Dated at Bangor, this 24th day of March, 1877.

CHAS. WOODMAN,
L. H. PATTEN,
ALEX. WEBB.

To CHARLES WOODMAN, one of the persons named in the foregoing application.

You are hereby directed to call a meeting of the Bangor Insurance Company at the time and place and for the purposes therein mentioned, by publishing in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier a true and attested copy of the foregoing application and of this warrant, and by posting a copy of this application to be continued seven days before said meeting.

In testimony of which I have hereunto affixed my hand and seal, this 24th day of March, A. D. 1877.

WASHING SOAP.

G. B. ROBINSON, Proprietor.

Music in the Air.

What about Soap? What kind of Soap? Pearl Soap. Barbers send it for shaving. Ladies and gentlemen want it for the toilet.

Music in the Air Again.

What about Soap? What kind of Soap? Peculiar Star Soap. The children of the poor and the children of the rich want it for the sink and tub, for the bath. It is also anti-tiny work be satisfied without it.

MUSIC IN THE AIR ONCE AGAIN.

And it is louder than ever. What about now? Soap. What of Soap? Peculiar Star Soap. 1877 Washing Soap. The public have been crying for it. The washers have been crying for it, and the people will have it, and right of seller, for it will come. feb12

An article of real merit is one of its very rare kind. Finally stores keep it. Trade every where supplied on profitable terms. General agents wanted, to whom liberal discounts will be made. If you would rather deal direct, send 25 cts. in stamps or receipt of 25 cents and twenty cents for one. Address or call on G. B. ROBINSON, North end Norombega Market, Bangor, Me.

Dear Public—No. 1.

We know you are much in want of them. And have been so for the last thirty years. Thousands of them are used in a week. And the demand is so great we will be overjoyed. They are in the kettle and the kettle is boiling. But don't be impatient! They will be done soon.

English Notice.

On February 24th I published above card. That said card notice was in part first of what I wished to say, but on more a second impression—just second and upon reading it I found it, on the 25th of February, that the 2nd of March was the day. Accordingly I published and Was it well? Or no, we appeal to the public. Read on and see. Dear Public, the 2nd day of March, 1877,
